Gandhiji tells the students 'you are the hope of the future.' After completing their studies, they would enter public life and would lead the poor people of the land. This implies that the students must have a sense of responsibility. Their creativity must manifest itself in concrete ways. One regrettable fact about our students is that though they have inspiring ideas and ideals while reading in colleges, they shun them as soon as they enter life. The faulty system of education thrives on the British model. There is no correlation between education and the needs, of the country. There is no co-relation between the education, as being imparted in our schools and colleges and the kind of life we live specially in villages.
